Tweed Blazers with Real Texture and Character

Tweed blazers add texture and traditional style to a modern jacket. These can be found in Cavani Thomas collection from Suits Plus, with colors like Amber, Navy and Sage, ranging from 34 to 56 inch chest size. Pair your tweed blazer with dark denim jeans or trousers to complete your look.

Why Tweed Blazers Stand Out

A good blazer is one of the most hard-working garments, and the tweed blazer is no exception. The tweed blazer brings an element of elegance to an otherwise plain outfit without much effort on the part of its wearer.

The Cavani Thomas range demonstrates perfectly what kind of effect tweed blazers can produce. They come in Amber, Navy, and Sage, with all three of them having equal prices and thus allowing the buyer to choose according to his or her tastes only.

The tweed blazer remains versatile. Combined with dark jeans, it speaks volumes about the effort put into the outfit, and combined with tailored trousers, it can substitute for a suit entirely. The range includes sizes starting from 34 up to 56 inches chest.

Texture That Adds Character

Texture is what makes a tweed blazer unique from a regular blazer. A well-put-together wardrobe usually begins with the navy blazer, which matches all outfits. A tweed blazer comes next because it brings something to an outfit without making changes to everything else.

In Suits Plus, their blazers range from the classic navy blazers to their textured tweed, breathable linen blend and double-breasted blazers. The tweed blazers lie somewhere in between the blazer range for men who would like to spice things up a bit from their usual blazer.

Thomas blazers represent the perfect blazers as they include the Amber, Navy and Sage tweed blazers. These blazers can be worn by themselves with dark jeans and pants.

Heritage Tweed in Plain Terms

Heritage Tweed is what the shop calls their tweed tailoring, which simply refers to a textured cloth. There is a collection of tweed, found right next to the collections of three-piece suits, two-piece suits, blazers, and waistcoats.

The majority of the blazers in the collection are the jackets found in suit sets, which can then be bought separately. Someone buying the jacket can either use it by itself, keeping it as just that, or complement it at a later date with a matching set of trousers and waistcoat. Regardless, the jacket serves its purpose right out of the box.

Three out of the twelve blazers in the collection are tweed blazers. This collection is known as the Thomas collection and is made available in Amber, Navy and Sage.

Amber Navy and Sage Shades

There are three colors for the Thomas tweed blazers and each one appeals to a certain wearer. Amber is the warmer color, navy the common one and sage the lighter one. Having all the three colors on display at The Galleries will make the choice very easy.

Amber Tweed for Warm Tones

This range's darkest hue is provided by amber. It does not match the standard navy and grey colors of the jackets, and therefore it would fit a man interested in standing out with his jacket. If worn over the black jeans, it will provide the simplicity in the color scheme of the outfit.

Navy and Sage Tweed Options

The Navy color is the best since it will go with all the clothes in the wardrobe, while the sage is a more subtle color which is not found often. Suits Plus provides suits in navy, sage, and amber colors in the Thomas collection.

Wearing Tweed Over Dark Jeans

Jeans that are dark go best with a tweed jacket. This combination conveys effortlessness effortlessly, which is precisely what a good blazer is supposed to do. Dark jeans will make the look relaxed, whereas the tweed provides texture and structure to the entire outfit.

Always go for simple and classic clothing when you want to create a look like this. This is because the white and light colored shirts work perfectly with the color amber, navy and sage tweed without clashing. Most of the tweed jackets found in the Thomas range also work according to the same concept, making them very versatile jackets.

Blazer makes dressing up very simple because it takes a pair of jeans from casual to a formal setting with ease and can be interchanged with tailored pants on the more formal side.

The Suits Plus Tweed Choices

Deciding on which tweed jacket to buy in the range will not be too difficult, as the store ensures that the range remains short. The Cavani Thomas blazer is one such product that belongs to the blazer range. This product comes in the colors Amber, Navy and Sage and there is an additional Tweed Suits Plus range that complements it.

One Cloth in Three Colours

The three Thomas blazers all have the same fabric style, and thus the only option left would be to choose the color. Each one can be compared on the hanger in the store, and all three tweed blazers come at the same price. The price has thus been eliminated from the decision-making process.

Where Tweed Sits on Price

The Blazers in the price range include the Malibu Sky that is priced at 119.99 pounds and the Bond Navy Double Breasted at 224.99 pounds. The Thomas Tweed Blazers have a price of 149.99 pounds each and are located at the mid-price point in the collection.

Standing in for a Full Suit

There is also the option of a blazer paired with tailored trousers. This combination offers a similarly sharp silhouette but in a far less formal context, thus making it ideal for those days when you wouldn't want to wear a whole suit. For most guys, this alone serves as a primary motivation for getting a decent jacket.

Adding tweed to this combination will bring an additional element of interest to it. While a simple navy blazer will make the suit look neat, the tweed one will add some texture to the same combination. In case of Suits Plus, a lot of blazers are jackets from complete suits sold separately.

This means that this choice is flexible in terms of how it will be used. A blazer may remain a separate jacket as long as its owner wants to, or it may be made complete at some point by adding matching trousers and waistcoat.

Completing the Look Later

A blazer is not necessarily the last piece of the ensemble. There are many blazers in the store that are the jackets that come from suit ensembles that are sold separately. The jacket takes precedence, followed by other pieces. This appeals to customers who prefer to make their ensemble one piece at a time.

Matching Trousers Added Later

It can exist as an individual item for as long as the wearer wants, but it can also be completed in future with matching pants. This is because many tweed blazers are made from the same fabric as a suit, and the inclusion of the pants completes the ensemble at once.

Adding a Waistcoat for Depth

The last component which could be worn afterwards is a waistcoat. It is offered by the shop separately as a collection; hence, one could choose one for underneath the blazer. This serves to add another layer to the ensemble, making the jacket appear more formal.

Sizes Running 34 to 56 Inch

It should be remembered that the proper fit is important for a good tweed blazer, and therefore the size is as essential as the color. The sizes vary from 34 to 56 inch chest throughout all of the blazers range. This is sufficiently varied so as to attract many body types.

A Wide Range of Chest Sizes

The sizes of the chests range between 34 inches and 56 inches. Therefore, many men of different body types will be able to look for the same assortment instead of looking in different places. The website even provides a Size Guide page for those customers who want to measure themselves.

Checking the Fit in Person

A trial of the tweed jacket will definitely give an idea about its fit. Each and every item of the store is hung on racks at The Galleries in Bristol, and an appointment for trying can be made beforehand. Suits Plus also provides free delivery throughout the UK for orders exceeding 200 pounds.

Try Them on at The Galleries

There is no better way of assessing a tweed blazer than seeing it firsthand. All the products hang on a rail at The Galleries where customers will be able to assess texture, color and fit before making any decisions.

The store is located at 4 Union Gallery, The Galleries Broadmead, Bristol BS1 3XD, opens from 9 am to 7 pm Monday to Saturday, and from 11 am to 5 pm on Sundays.
